CS 370: Fall 2015
Weekly Reports

DUE ONLINE ONLY on the following dates:
10/29
11/5
11/12
11/19
12/1

I. Overview

On each date listed above, you will submit a report indicating what has been accomplished so far and what you intend to accomplish for the next week. You should be tracking (roughly) how many hours you have spent individually on the project!

II. Format

For the first report:

1) Start with your COMPLETE spreadsheet of requirements.
2) Add a column entitled “Worked On By.” This column will contain the last name(s) of whoever has worked on this requirement at any point in time.
3) Add a SEPARATE SHEET of the spreadsheet that keeps a running tally of how many hours each team member has spent working on the project. This is a cumulative tally across the entire project.

For ALL reports (including the first):

1) Highlight requirements based on the following color scheme:

- White/Unhighlighted → requirement not done and not scheduled yet
- Yellow → scheduled to be completed by next report
- Orange → behind schedule; should have been completed already, but plan to complete by next report
- Green → completed
- Red → WAS complete, but has bug/error that must be fixed before the next report. Red items remain red even if they are behind schedule. An item that is in progress but has not been completed because of bugs should be highlighted orange.

2) For highlighted requirements, fill in the name(s) of whoever has worked on this requirement OR is going to work on this requirement.
Each report should be a modified version of the report submitted the previous week, so add any hours spent the current week to the previous report’s totals. In other words, the hours spent are cumulative across the whole project.

Example:

R1 and R7 have not been scheduled yet.

R2 is behind schedule, and Wayne is the only one who has worked on it. They plan to complete it before the next report.

R3 is scheduled to be completed by Wayne before the next report.

Both R4 and R5 were already completed at some point by Kent.

R6 was completed at some point but has some kind of error or bug that needs to be fixed by the next report. Kent and Wayne have both worked on this requirement (either building it in the first replace or repairing/debugging it).
